Newport, October 9, 1784.

L O N D O N.

HOUSE of LORDS, FRIDAY, August 20.

HIS Majesty came to the House of Peers and being seated on the throne, the Commons were sent for, and being come, with their Speaker, the royal assent was given to the tea and window tax duty bill, the game licence duty bill, the postage duty bill, the silk duty bill, the load duty bill, the pawabrokers bill, and some others.

After which his Majesty made the following most gracious Speech from the Throne:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I cannot close this session of Parliament without returning you my warmest thanks for the eminent proofs you have given of your zealous and diligent attention to the public service.

The happiest effects may be expected from the provisions which you have made for the better government of India, and from the institution of a tribunal so peculiarly adapted to the trial of offences committed in that distant country.

I observe with great satisfaction the laws which you have passed for the preservation and improvement of the revenue. No exertions shall be wanting on my part to give them vigour and effect.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

The zeal and liberality with which you have provided for the exigencies of the public service, and the assistance which you have given me to prevent a growing arrear in the expences of my civil List, demand my particular thanks.

I feel in common with you for the unavoidable burthens of my people.

The importance of effectually supporting our national credit, after a long and exhausting war can alone reconcile me to so painful a necessity. I trust the same consideration will enable my faithful subjects to meet it, as they have uniformly done, with fortitude and patience.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The Definitive Treaty which has been signed with the States General of the United Provinces, and the peace concluded in India, as well as the assurances which I have receive from foreign powers, promise the continuance of general tranquillity.

I trust therefore that, after so laborious a session, it will not be found necessary to call you again together at a very early period.

Many important objects with respect to our Trade and Commerce, which could not now be provided for, will naturally require your attention after the recess; and such regulations will, I trust, be framed, after a full investigation, as shall be found best calculated to promote the wealth and prosperity of all the parts of the empire.

Then the Lord Chancellor by his Majesty's command, said;

My Lords and Gentlemen,

It is his Majesty's royal will and pleasure, that this Parliament be prorogued to Tuesday, the 26th day of October next, to be then here holden—and this Parliament is accordingly prorogued to Tuesday 26th day of October next.

HOUSE of COMMONS, August 20.

This day the House (if the Speaker and about eleven members could be called a House) met for the sole purpose of attending his Majesty in the House of Peers: as there were not 40 members present to enable the Speaker to take the chair, he did not sit in it, till he was put in it (by prerogative) by the Usher of the Black Rod, who summoned him to wait upon his Majesty in the House of Lords; the Speaker obeyed the summons, and carried up with him the several money bills, for which the Commons received the usual compliment of le Roy remercie ses bons sujets accepte leur benevolence, et ainsi le veut:—the King thanks his good subjects, accepts their Kindness and so it is — and thus the first session of the new Parliament was terminated.

August 21. No less than five great American houses tumbled yesterday in this city; one to the tune of 140,000*l.* ster. With regard to American connections since the peace, it may be safely said, Si populus vult decipi, decipiat—If the people will be deceived, let them be deceived.

The insurance from London to any port of America is now done at five per cent.

On Wednesday a clergyman was committed to Wood-street Compter by Alderman Hart, on the oaths of several persons, for feloniously stealing two fowls from the Cock on Snow-hill; before he committed the fact, he had been appointed to preach next Sunday at the chapel in Wood-street Compter.

Aug. 27. So many great fortunes have already been made in America by the English and Irish emigrants, that the Minister has it in contemplation to bring in a bill, by which they shall be brought under the same restrictions as the India Nabobs, and made to swear to certain property—when they come over.

Extract of a letter from Edinburgh, August 18.

"Some time ago mention was made in the papers of a famine raging in Scotland, for which parliamentary aid was given. The following letter affords a recent and melancholy testimony of their situation:—"I never saw such distress, and yet I fear more to come; but I am hasting away to avoid seeing it. We had only two days of summer, only one of sunshine. No fishing; and what crop is on the ground, a month too late. In very many places no crop at all, as none was sown—There is meal to be sold, but nothing left to give for it; and the people are dying of hunger.—About 1300 head of horned cattle died in the parishes of North-Maving and Unst; in others nearly the same proportion; and about half the sheep in the country."

B O S T O N, October 25.

Tuesday last, being the 19th of October, a day ever memorable for that brilliant event which gave to the allied arms a favourite British General, at the head of 9000 chosen troops, and which secured peace, liberty and safety to America, was fixed on as a proper time to pay those honors to the Marquis de la Fayette, which his services, both in the field and cabinet, in times of danger, have so justly entitled him to, from this country.

On the 18th inst. the two branches of the Legislature passed an order, that the President of the Senate, and Speaker of the House of Representatives, invite the Marquis de la Fayette, to meet the Supreme Executive and the two Houses of the Legislature in the Senate-Room, on Tuesday the 19th, at 12 o'clock, to congratulate him on his safe arrival in America, after the final establishment of a peace, to which his friendly influence in Europe has largely contributed; and of which the anniversary of the 19th of October (a day always to be marked in the annals of America) happily reminds us.

The next day his Excellency the Governor, his honour the Lieutenant-Governor and the honorable Council, attended in the Senate Chamber, where the two Houses of the Legislature were assembled. At the hour prefixed, the Marquis, with his suite, was introduced by the Secretary of the Commonwealth; when his Excellency the Governor, in behalf of the Executive and Legislative branches of Government, congratulated him in terms of the highest respect and esteem:—To which the Marquis was pleased to make a polite and elegant reply. After the congratulations were over, the Marquis, with his Excellency the Governor, withdrew.

But the Marquis is too much beloved at Boston, not to meet with every testimony of private as well as public affection and esteem.—The merchants, and other gentlemen of the town, accordingly gave a dinner at Faneuil-Hall; at which were invited and present, the Marquis, and all the French gentlemen in town, the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, the Council, the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House and President of the Bank, the Clergy of every denomination, the Selectmen, 75 Continental officers, and a number of strangers. At one o'clock, the train of artillery, commanded by Major Davis, joined by a company in similar uniform from Roxbury, commanded by Major Spooner, paraded in State-street, and discharged 13 cannon, which were answered by a like number at the Castle, and by his Most Christian Majesty's frigate, La Nymphe.—In the mean while, the gentlemen invited to partake of the entertainment, collected at the Senate Chamber; and at half past two o'clock, upwards of 300 persons went in procession from the Senate Chamber to Faneuil-Hall, under escort of Major Davis's artillery, and under the discharge of the cannon commanded by Major Spooner, which was planted at the bottom of State Street, and facing the procession. The elegance with which the tables were covered, and the ornaments which beautifully decorated the hall, were peculiarly striking to every person as he entered, and reflected the highest taste on the managers. At the upper end of the hall were erected 13 arches, which gradually lessened from the centre to the ends, and were adorned and interspersed with a variety of flowers and verdure; in the arch directly over the Marquis's head was hung a flour de lis.

The company while at dinner, were entertained with a band of music.—After dinner the following 13 toasts were drank, viz.

1. The United States.
2. Our great Ally His Most Christian Majesty.
3. General Washington.*
4. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
5. Commerce, Agriculture, Arts and Sciences.
6. The memory of those patriots and heroes who fell in the late contest.
7. May the United States of America never lose sight of Justice.
8. The army and navy of France.
9. Perpetual harmony and happiness to the United States and their Allies.
10. The combined forces, who nobly fought in the cause of America.
11. May the temple of Janus be shut forever.
12. The rights of mankind, and universal benevolence.
13. This memorable day—SARATOGA and YORK-TOWN.

At every toast 13 cannon were discharged in Market Square; most of the toasts were accompanied with a clapping of hands three times.

The hall being completely filled, the two companies of artillery were entertained at the Coffee-House, at the expence of the gentlemen subscribers.

The entertainment was conducted, through every part of it, with decent festivity, and sincere respect to merit, without adulation or the appearance of party spirit.

The day was closed by a magnificent and superb exhibition of fire works from Madam Hayley's garden, where the Marquis and a great number of gentlemen and ladies of distinction were present, and partook of the pleasing entertainment.

The King of Britain has given his Assent to the Bill respecting the Restoration of the forfeited Estates in Scotland; and the American Trade Bill.

Sir Guy Carleton is appointed to the command in the East-Indies.

Last Thursday evening about sun-set, Mr. Lopez was robbed on the high way, about two miles from Man's Tavern in Wrentham. The robbers were dressed in sailors habit, and had packs on their backs.

* When General Washington was given, a curtain behind the Marquis was instantly rent asunder which discovered to the company his Excellency's picture, crowned with a wreath of flowers and laurels, and supported with the ensigns of France and America. The Marquis rose from his seat, and with a countenance mingled with pleasure and surprise, and a tear of friendship starting in his eye, at recognizing the features of his General (as he always styles him) repeated the clap that had been given, which instantly communicated to the whole company, and involuntarily produced a roar of applause.

P R O V I D E N C E, October 27.

On Saturday afternoon arrived in town from Boston the Hon. Major-General Marquis DE LA FAYETTE. His entering the town was announced by the discharge of 13 cannon by the United Train of Artillery; at sun-set the salute was reiterated by 13 heavy cannon on Beacon-Hill, the bells were set a-ringing, and every demonstration of joy, which the opportunity would permit, was shown, by the inhabitants, to this very distinguished and amiable character.

On Sunday morning the Marquis sat off for Newport.

Upon his arrival the late officers of the American army, belonging to this state, presented to him the following Address, viz.

THE Gentlemen, late officers in the army of the United States, and now citizens of this State, are happy in meeting you, upon this occasion, with the warmest congratulations. They are convened, by previous appointment, to recount, under the banners of peace, the rugged conditions, and the glorious triumphs of the war:—In this pleasing interview, to be honored with the friendly attention of the Marquis DE LA FAYETTE inspires them with sentiments of gratitude and affection!—They have been honored under your immediate commands in the field—you have condescended to fight by their side;—and, having bled and conquered in the service of their country, you now exchange the splendors of the hero for the milder enjoyments of the citizen in the blessings of freedom!

May a life so valuable to mankind be under the peculiar protection of heaven; and when decaying nature can no longer receive the rewards of virtue here, may you be perfect in the joys of immortality!

In behalf, and by request, of the Gentlemen, I have the honour of being, Sir, with every sentiment of affection and esteem, your very obedient, and most humble Servant,

J. M. V A R N U M,

The Right Hon. the Marquis

DE LA FAYETTE.

Providence, October 25, 1784.

To which the Marquis was pleased to return the following Answer:

UPON my arrival, Gentlemen, at this Town, I thought myself fortunate to meet with you; and from your so kind welcome I derive an additional and more lively satisfaction.—While reviewing the events in which we had a common share, I peculiarly enjoy those obligations, so pleasing to an affectionate heart, that entitle you to my everlasting gratitude; happy in the esteem and good wishes of brother officers, whom I highly respect and tenderly love.—I congratulate you upon the acquired blessings of Peace, and the firmly established principles of liberty; which, must be the more precious to your patriotic minds, as they are intimately connected with the unparalleled glorious exertions of our late American army.

To every one of you, Gentlemen, I beg leave to present my grateful acknowledgements, and my ardent wishes for your welfare—and with all the sentiments of a brother and a friend, have the honour to be

Your obedient humble Servant,

LA FAYETTE.

To the late officers of the army, now citizens of the State of Rhode-Island.

E Gentlemen, late officers in the army of the United States, and now citizens of this State, are happy in meeting you, upon this occasion, with the warmest congratulations. They are convened, by previous appointment, to recount, under the banners of peace, rugged conditions, and the glorious triumphs of the war:—In this pleasing interview, to be honored with the friendly attention of the Marquis LA FAYETTE inspires them with sentiments of gratitude and affection!—They have been honored under your immediate commands in the field;—and, having bled and conquered in the service of their country, you now exchange the honors of the hero for the milder enjoyments of the citizen in the blessings of freedom! May a life so valuable to mankind be under peculiar protection of heaven; and when declining nature can no longer receive the rewards his friends and the Public in general, that he has removed from Greenwich to Newport, and has opened the Shop formerly belonging to Capt.
